LUNG CANCER LIVINGROOM

Best of ASCO (American Society of Clinical Oncology)
 July 17, 2018

We will be discussing new developments in the frontline management of all non-small cell lung cancer patients integrating both immunotherapy and targeted therapies. These new developments have led to improvements in the survival of patients with favorable side effect profiles. The integration of frontline immunotherapy for patients with both non-squamous and squamous histologies with or without chemotherapy has led to a shift in the paradigm of treatment for the majority of lung cancer patients. There have been new improvements with genomic targets of cancer identified, EGFR, ALK, ROS1, NTRK and RET, leading to improvements with new targeted therapy options.

Panel of Speakers:

Dr. Hatim Husain- UC San Diego Health
 Amy C. Moore Ph.D-ALCF, Director of Science and Research
